FIRE THREATENED BUSINESS BLOCK

MIDNIGHT BLAZE IN GOLD TAILORING SHOP CONQUERED IN NICK OF TIME.

DELAY IN GETTING ALARM IN Need of Fire Alarm System Demonstrated—Charges Phone Operators With Inattention—Gas Jets Found Open—Losses Covered By Insurance.

Fire of uncertain origin threatened the complete destruction of Gold's tailoring establishment in the new Utley building, First street, at 11:15 Saturday night, principally because H. Pumphrey who, with A. T. Manges, discovered the fire, could not, for nearly five minutes, arouse the central girls of the Home telephone company.

Messrs. Manges and Pumphrey were going into the latter's laundry when they noticed the glow in the tailor shop. Pumphrey rushed to a telephone, while his companion ran across the street and looking into the window satisfied himself there was a fire in the rear of the room.

Could Not Get Answer.

He hurried back across the street to the laundry where Mr. Pumphrey was frantically jerking at the receiver hook on his telephone, trying to get an answer from central. Mr. Manges again ran across the street and looked in the glass of the front door and rushed in, cutting his hand painfully on the broken glass. He was unable to do anything, however, as the intense heat and heavy black smoke drove him to the door again. Six minutes from the time Manges ran across the street the second time the fire bell rang. The firemen had gotten the alarm probably two minutes before the bell rang, and were on their way to the fire when it rang.

Gas Jets Open.

The firemen got control of the fire quickly after they arrived, although the exceptionally heavy smoke made it extremely difficult to get to the rear of the room and at the seat of the fire. When Fire Chief Coffey did work his way back he found both gas jets, which were used to supply fuel for the pressing irons, wide open, the gas pouring forth.

Is Well Insured.

Mr. Gold stated to a Telegraph reporter soon after the fire that he was unable to state the amount of his loss as many suits of clothing he had in the room belonged to other parties. He stated, however, that he had insurance to the amount of $1,000.

The building is owned by Gordon Utley, who was not able to estimate the damage. The floor is burned through and the plastering is completely ruined, but whether the fire got into the stringers has not been determined. Mr. Utley has sufficient insurance to cover all losses.

Need Alarm System.

The principal feature of the fire was the demonstration of the inadequacy of the fire alarm system in Dixon, and it proved beyond a doubt the strength of the arguments of ex-Fire Chief A. J. Graff and others that a telegraphic alarm system, with numbered boxes located at different corners about the city is necessary for quicker service.

The first five minutes of a fire are the vital moments and many a serious blaze could have been prevented or reached in that time. To have to hunt for a telephone, especially at night, and then having to wait several minutes for central to answer the call, gives the dread element opportunity to spread, with the result that when the firemen do finally arrive at the conflagration, they find a fire of serious proportions to fight.

EXAMINATION FOR FREE SCHOLARSHIP

The examination for the free scholarship in the University of Illinois will be held at the county superintendent's office Saturday, June 1, beginning at 8 a. m. Each year the state offers a free four-year scholarship to the state college to each county in the state. The indications are that a number of Lee county pupils will attempt to win the free scholarship.

WILLIAM MARCONI

Mr. Marconi, the famous inventor of wireless telegraphy, will be one of the important figures at the triennial international radio-telegraph conference which opens in London on June 4.

HELD FUNERAL OF HENRY WILLIAMS

AGED VETERAN WAS LAID TO REST THIS AFTERNOON IN OAKWOOD CEMETERY.

The funeral of Henry H. Williams, who died Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Pierce, of Sterling, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Morris & Preston chapel in this city, where the remains were brought this morning. The services were conducted by Rev. F. D. Stone, pastor of the Methodist church and burial was at Oakwood cemetery.

Mr. Williams was 74 years old and was a veteran of the civil war. His life, until a short time ago, was spent in and about Dixon and his many friends here will mourn his death. Before going to war he was married to Hulda Banks of Batavia who died 29 years ago. Seven children were born to this union, two of whom are dead, the surviving children being George and Allen of this city, Mrs. John Pierce of Sterling, Mrs. Ida Perry of Chicago and Ira, of Penrose.

ELIZABETH SHAW ES-TATE REPORT FILED

EXECUTOR OF ESTATE TODAY FILED LENGTHY FINAL REPORT—HOSPITAL'S SHARE NOT DECIDED.

George C. Dixon, executor of the estate of the late Elizabeth Shaw, today filed with County Judge R. H. Scott his final report on that estate, which, after the hearing, was approved by the court.

The report, which is lengthy, requiring 34 closely typewritten pages, shows that all of the real and personal holdings have been transferred to cash, with the exception of one farm in Iowa, valued at about $24,000.

It is shown that the receipts from all sales, etc., are $89,195.33, with disbursements for special legacies, claims and the cost of administration amounting to $30,115.71. There is left a cash balance of $59,079.62 for distribution.

Just how much of this $59,000 will go to the Dixon hospital cannot be determined for a few days, as additional orders from the court will be necessary before that detail is decided.

LEE GOOD RETURNS TO DIXON.

Lee Good, who has been working as chief clerk at the American express office in Sterling, has resigned his position there and will return to Dixon. He spent yesterday with his family here, returning to Sterling today to have the route agent check him out.

MANY WITNESS FLIGHTS.

Many Dixonites went to Sterling yesterday to witness the aeroplane, automobile and motorcycle races. They report that the events were well attended and that the flights were especially pretty. Special car service was given by the S. D. & E. to accommodate the crowds.

BIG U. S. WARSHIPS RUSHING TO CUBA

Five Dreadnoughts of Navy Ordered South Without Marine Complement.

MORE BATTLESHIPS TO FOLLOW

Five Thousand Troops in Readiness—Placing Army Transport in Commission Means More Than a Naval Demonstration.

Norfolk, Va., May 27.—The battleships New Jersey, Georgia and Rhode Island have steamed out of Hampton Roads for Cuba. It was not thought that they would get away so early. In eight hours the three battleships had taken on enough provisions to last 500 men 60 days, had filled their bunkers with coal and loaded a lot of ammunition.

New York, May 27.—Prepared for the greatest naval demonstration since the Spanish-American war, five dreadnoughts of the United States navy are rushing to Cuba under full steam. Three other battleships and a cruiser are being loaded with munitions and munitions of war at Hampton roads with feverish haste, while still another battleship is hurrying across the gulf of Mexico to join the fleet of Key West. At the Norfolk navy yard are assembled hundreds of marines waiting for transports, several of which are being made ready for a quick embarkation.

Ordered South Without Marines. Rear Admiral Osterhaus, commanding the Atlantic fleet, arrived off Tompkinsville on board his flagship, the armored cruiser Washington, but before anchor could be dropped he received orders by wireless from the navy department at Washington to proceed at once to Cuba without waiting for a complement of marines and supplies, which was the vessel's mission to this port.

An hour later the battleships Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio steamed up the narrows at full speed, rushed marines and munitions on board and turned south again a few hours later.

The battleships Georgia, New Jersey and Rhode Island and the cruiser Montgomery took supplies and marines on board at Hampton roads. The Georgia was reported by wireless as proceeding to Guantanamo. The battleship Nebraska reported that she was making fast time across the Gulf of Mexico. The supply ship Culgoa is at Hampton roads taking on supplies for the south.

5,000 Troops Are Ready. The 5,000 troops which have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to embark at once can be moved as soon as the transports are ready. The orders to place the army transports at Newport News in commission, naval men said, indicated that something more than a naval demonstration to overawe the rebellious negroes in Cuba was contemplated in Washington.

Hurried orders were dispatched to the gunboat Eagle not to leave Haiti as previously instructed, but to keep a watchful eye on the narrow strait separating Haiti and Cuba to prevent filibustering expeditions from the latter island.

It is understood in Washington that a conspiracy exists between the negroes of the two islands to establish a second negro republic on the eastern end of Cuba.

Fighting Has Begun. Already the fighting has begun. An engagement was in progress near Guantanamo, but up to the time of filing his message Consul Holladay at Santiago was not able to ascertain the result.

TRAINING CLASS TONIGHT.

The meeting of the teachers' training class at the Y. M. C. A. this evening should prove of exceptional interest, as some special announcements are to be made, and also arrangements will be completed for an outing of the class members.

MILLER PLAYS ALL OF SATURDAY'S GAME

Ward Miller, Dixon's representative on the Chicago Cubs, was in Saturday's game at Pittsburgh, in which Chicago was defeated, 4 to 2, at every opportunity. "Windy" stole two of the club's five stolen bases, made two of the four hits, and scored both their runs.

TO FILE JUDGMENT DOCKET.

Tax Collector Frank C. Vaughan will tomorrow file with County Judge R. H. Scott the judgment docket of delinquent taxes, on which, next Monday, he will ask for judgment and an order to sell the delinquent property.

BROWNS PLAY GAME ON DECORATION DAY

OLD REGULARS WILL APPEAR IN FIRST HOME GAME THIS SEASON WITH STERLING.

STUDENTS PLAY FACULTY FRIDAY

The Union High School Team Will With Team Picked From Faculty and Alumni at Park Friday Afternoon.

The Dixon Browns will appear in the first game they have played in Dixon this year when they meet the Sterling team at Athletic park on the afternoon of Memorial day. The lineup has not been announced, but the names of many of the old ball players of this city will appear in it and the game is calculated to be a good one. Ladies are to be admitted free. A large crowd is looked for at the opening game of the Browns' season.

SCHOOLBOYS PLAY FACULTY

A baseball game for which no admission will be charged and which should be one of the greatest things of the season, be played at Athletic park Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The game is to be between the Dixon Union high school team and a team picked from the alumni and faculty of the two schools. The coaches, Messrs. Bailey and Valle will play with the alumni team, which is to include a number of business and professional men, and everyone is asked to turn out and enjoy the fun.

100,000 MEN PARADE

Immense Throng of Strikers Walk London's Streets.

Transport Workers and Dockers Make Monster Demonstration in British Metropolis—Big Meet in Park.

London, May 27.—One hundred thousand strikers carrying banners paraded the streets of London, making the largest labor demonstration ever seen in this city. The parade of the men was their way of announcing that they will carry their fight of transport workers and dockers for better conditions to the bitter end and to try to blockade all the ports of England. Immense crowds lined the streets through which the long procession passed.

The Amalgamated Society of Watermen, Lightermen and Bargemen joined by the Amalgamated trades labor unions and Labor Protection league held the largest demonstration ever seen in Trafalgar square. Afterwards they visited various parks, where other sections were holding meetings and passing resolutions with vociferous cheering to urge a general strike throughout the country. But it was all orderly and the mounted policemen patrolling the route had little or nothing to do.

Meanwhile other leaders of the agitation are canvassing the country and holding meetings in an attempt to get assistance from the railway car men.

ROOT WILL NOT DECLINE

Expects to Serve as Temporary Chairman of Chicago Convention.

Washington, May 27.—Senator Elihu Root of New York, who was recently named temporary chairman of the Chicago convention by a subcommittee of the Republican national committee, issued this statement here: "There is no foundation whatever for the story that I contemplate declining to act as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention. The customary duty of the committee on arrangements requires them to designate some one to render that service. I was notified by the committee that they had designated me and I accepted the designation. Unless that designation is overruled, as, of course, it may be by the convention, I shall serve."

$50 Will Go Direct to Men. Washington, May 27.—As a result of a protest by Samuel Gompers, the members of the Titanic's crew who came to Washington to testify in the senate investigation will each receive $50 for his services direct.

U. S. W. V. Meeting.

A special meeting of the Spanish War Veterans will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Armory, to make final arrangements for Memorial day.

Jos. Reilly, Commander.

GOMEZ PROTESTS ANY INTERVENTION

Informing Taft He Wants No Interference From U. S. In Cuba.

ESTENOZ PROCLAIMS SELF HEAD

Rebel Leader Designates His Chief Aide—Insurrectos Are Pillaging Stores and Plantations and Private Residences.

Havana, May 27.—President Gomez has protested to President Taft against any intervention by the United States in Cuba.

Santiago, May 27.—General Estenoz, the rebel commander, has proclaimed himself president of the new republic of Cuba. He designated General Iyonet, his chief aide, as "commander in chief of the army of vindication." Estenoz and Iyonet have adopted a flag of blue and white stripes.

With all the available troops concentrated in positions to attack the main body of rebels under Estenoz and Iyonet, the government is powerless to provide protection for the hundreds of planters in the Oriente who are in imminent peril of attacks by detached bands of blacks. Knowing the government's plight, the insurgents are becoming bolder and the situation is hourly becoming more alarming.

Cuban Troops Rout Rebels. Government forces under Captain Percy routed a band of rebels at Tiguabos, near Guantanamo, killing several and the same success was had by troops under Colonel Machado at Parrash. Officials of the Cuba Copper company, ten miles from Santiago and their employees, repulsed an attack of 150 mounted negroes with rifles forwarded by the government in lieu of troops.

The town of Baracoa has sent an urgent appeal to the government for a gunboat. The town is without protection and is completely cut off by telegraph, the rebels having cut the wires.

General Iyonet at the head of 150 men was active in the vicinity of La Carolina, pillaging stores and plantations and even private residences. General Estenoz and sixty mounted men are reported to have passed through Jarahuca, thirty miles from Guantanamo.

Palma Soriano, north of this city, is completely surrounded by rebels and the residents are appealing for aid.

ARREST SUSPECT IN ASSAULT OUTRAGE

Sterling, May 27.—Special to Telegraph—The police arrested a strange negro Saturday night whom they suspected of assaulting Mrs. Burke on Friday night. The black was taken before Mrs. Burke, who stated that he was not the man who entered her house. She describes her assailant as a large man, whereupon the suspect was released. The officers are still searching for the man.

INSTITUTE COMMITTEE MEETS IN STERLING

Sterling, May 27.—Special to Telegraph—The state executive committee of the Illinois Farmers' Institute will be here tomorrow to make preliminary arrangements for the next meeting of the state association, to be held here.

AUTOIST KILLS PET DOG.

A careless autoist this morning ran over and killed the pet Boston terrier owned by Clarence Reese in front of his home on East Fourth street. We say a "careless autoist." The term is too lenient. There was absolutely no excuse for the outrage in this case. The little dog, a beautiful, tame, harmless pet and much thought of in the Reese household, had committed no offense and the cold-blooded auto driver who has so little love and mercy in his heart that he will not turn over the steering wheel of his car to save the life of an inoffensive family pet, which he might be sure someone is fond of, in our estimation, falls short a long ways from being any sort of a man or even a desirable citizen.

GO TO INDIANAPOLIS RACES

An exceptionally large number of autos from Iowa, Nebraska and other western states passed through here yesterday and today enroute to Indianapolis for the big races Decoration day.

CHARLES E. PATTON

Mr. Patton is serving his first term in congress, representing the Twenty-first district of Pennsylvania. He is one of the big business men of his home city of Curwensville and in politics is a Republican.

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT SHAW

PUPILS OF FIVE SCHOOLS GRADUATE TONIGHT—PROF. MILLER WILL SPEAK.

Six pupils, representing five of the rural schools of the county, will be graduated this evening with commencement exercises to be held at the Shaw church. The address of the evening is to be made by County Superintendent L. W. Miller, who will take for his subject, "Larger Efficiency of the Common Schools." The graduates are Dora Miller, Donald Corn, Mansey Turner, Thomas Kessel, Evangeline July and Eugene Whitney.

PRIEST AT LEE ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

FATHER JOSEPH PARKER SERIOUSLY INJURED WHILE BY GUN WHILE CLEANING WEAPON.

Lee, Ill., May 27.—Special to The Telegraph—Father Joseph Parker, pastor of the Catholic church, was very seriously hurt Friday afternoon at about 3 o'clock when, while cleaning his revolver, the gun accidentally discharged, the bullet passing entirely through the reverend gentleman's body, just below the heart.

Father Parker was in his study at the time of the accident, and the report of the gun brought assistance to him quickly. All that could be done by local physicians was performed Friday evening, and Saturday the injured man was taken to the Aurora hospital. Reports received today from Aurora are encouraging, and say that he stood the trip well and is resting as easily as can be expected.

DIXON WILL HAVE NEW DIRECTORY

L. Leshnick, formerly of the McCoy directory company, who issued the best directory Dixon ever had, who is now in that business for himself, was here today looking over the city and talking to the business men regarding issuing a new directory of the city and of Lee county. Mr. Leshnick, who will return here after Decoration Day, is planning to issue a first class directory of the city, and as this will be his first book since engaging in business for himself, he hopes to make it a star effort.

LICENSED TO WED

A marriage license was issued this morning to Joe Saph and Miss Gladys A. Rittenous, both of this city.

ISABELLE HILL INSANE.

Miss Isabelle Hill was adjudged insane today by a commission in Judge Scott's court and will be taken to Watertown for treatment. Her condition is the result of extreme nervousness.

NEED OF SCAVENGER SERVICE IS GREAT

CITY COUNCIL SHOULD PROVIDE FOR REMOVAL OF ALL REFUSE DURING HOT SUMMER MONTHS

GARBAGE IS MENACE TO HEALTH

Breeding Place of Billions of Germs Should Be Carried Away and Cremated—Citizens Make Appeal to Council for Action.

In the People's Column in another portion of this evening's issue a communication from a Dixonite is published. The article is a discussion of a very important problem that is before the citizens of Dixon and the city commissioner. In particular, that of instituting a scavenger system that will keep the city rid of garbage accumulate and stand any length of months.

Volumes of interesting facts could be written in support of the demand for the prompt disposal of all refuse but it is all unnecessary, for all are conversant with the deadly danger attached to allowing any pile of garbage, or refuse of any sort, to accumulate any stand any length of time.

In the name of the citizens of Dixon the Telegraph petitions the members of the honorable city council to take immediate action in regard to the institution of a city scavenger system. At the council meeting tonight would be a very good opportunity to start the movement.

UTILITIES COMPANY PAYS FOR ELECTION

CITY TREASURER DREW RECEIVED CHECK FOR $476.20 THIS MORNING, PER THE VERBAL AGREEMENT.

Mr. James E. Drew, City Treasurer. Dixon, Ill.

Dear Sir:

Herewith I am enclosing our check in amount of $476.20 in connection with franchise extension election May 14th, as per itemized list of bills contained in letter from Mr. Henry S. Dixon to Mr. C. A. Munroe, under date of May 18th.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) J. H. GULICK, Treasurer.

The above is a copy of a letter received today by Mr. Drew and the check covering the expense that the city incurred in holding the election. It is an evidence of good faith on the part of the Illinois Northern Utilities company, for the company had not obligated themselves by any contract to stand the cost of the election, but their local representative, Attorney Henry S. Dixon, took it upon himself to make that offer at the council meeting one evening and the company has carried out the agreement made by their representative.

OPEN JO DAVIES COURT.

Judge R. S. Farrang and Reporter A. C. Gossman went to Galena today to open the May term of Jo Davies circuit court.

STERLING MAN HAS CLOSE CALL

Sterling, May 27.—Special to Telegraph—Fred Roat, yard foreman at the Northwestern, had a narrow escape from death Saturday afternoon when, in boarding a box car which was being switched about, the handle pulled loose, allowing him to fall under the wheels. Fortunately Engineer George Ferri was looking back at his foreman at the time and stopped his engine at once, the result being that Roat escaped with a mashed toe on his right foot.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT.

The regular meeting of the city council will be held this evening. There is nothing of exceptional importance to come before the commissioners.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

BIRTHDAY HOROSCOPES.

MAY 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25

Have great possibilities and nature has lavished many gifts upon you; are a thinker, but often lack continuity of thought, purpose and affection. Poverty grinds you sadly, and unless you have enough to gratify your desires can be dismally unhappy. If a woman, are apt to be nervous and hysterical unless overcome in early life; if a man, careless in manner.

Attended Breakfast

Eight ladies Thursday attended a breakfast given at the home of Mrs. John Lawrence in Sterling.

Attended Party

Mrs. Warren of Grand Detour attended the children's party in Dixon Friday evening.

Enjoyed Picnic

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Parsons, Mrs. George H. Squires, Mrs. Hopper, Miss Squires and little Misses Harriet Parsons, Lorraine Hopper and Catherine Owens enjoyed a picnic at Lowell park Saturday afternoon.

Guests Depart

as many more from Sterling, Morrison and Oregon, and the music has been engaged to play until 1 o'clock.

Persons who wish to see the fancy dancing of Mrs. Collins will be afforded an opportunity and an admission fee for spectators will be charged. Below is the program of Mrs. Ruth Coffin Collins:

I. Spanish Dances:
(a) Sampson—Tambourine Dance from Andalusia.

(b) Sarabande..... Seebach (Castanets)

II. Aesthetic Dance:
(a) Waltz Caprice..... M. B. Gilbert

III. Russian Folk Dance:
(a) Mazurka Caprice..... Rachmanoff

Mrs. Collins will give the first dance about 9:15, immediately after the interurban train arrives from Sterling. This fancy dancing will be a rare treat in itself, as Mrs. Collins has finished technique and interprets her dances with intelligence and refinement. She will be accompanied by Mr. Krell and this will be the special feature of the evening, aside from the splendid music by Krell's orchestra.

At Luncheon.

Miss Besse Camp entertained at luncheon Sunday evening.

At Lowell Park.

Entertained Playmates.

Miss Mary-Louise Fuller gave a tea party this afternoon in honor of Miss Miriam Collins.

NEW MINISTER WELL RECEIVED

Dr. Crissman, the new pastor of the First Presbyterian church, occupied the pulpit for the first Sunday of his pastorate yesterday, and two large congregations pronounced approval of him, after the services. Dr. Crissman is indeed a happy addition to the clergy of Dixon. He possesses a very pleasing personality, is a deep and constructive thinker, has excellent pulpit presence and delivers his sermons in a most forceful manner.

The new pastor, who is a single man, has taken suite 6 and 7 at the Y. M. C. A. dormitory, and will spend several weeks now getting acquainted with the members of his congregation and the people of the city.

RINGLINGS MAY COME HERE

Dixon may have Ringling's circus this year, as the show is desirous of showing in this vicinity, but is not willing to stand the rental asked by some of the cities. George Olmstead of Sterling Saturday received word from the advance man of the circus to the effect that the show would not pay the $200 asked by Martin Bros. of Sterling for one day's rental of the old fair grounds. It is thought the show may attempt to find exhibition grounds here.

GRAND DETOUR BUS.

Charles Sheffield, proprietor of the Sheffield hotel in Grand Detour, has purchased a Buick auto bus that can be used for carrying passengers or freight.

MCANN DAVIS ILL.

J. McCann Davis, the well known politician of Springfield, is at present at St. Luke's hospital in Chicago recovering from an operation.

The Difference.

Men think most of the present—the immediate; and rightly, their calling being to do and to work. Women, on the other hand, more of how things hang together in life; and rightly, too, because their destiny—the destiny of the families—is bound up in this interdependence, and it is exactly this which it is their mission to promote. —Goethe.

H. U. Bardwell left today for Aurora.

P. C. Coffey of Dubuque, Ia., is in Dixon visiting friends and relatives. Dr. E. J. Brewer of Shabbona is here today on business.

Ex-Senator Delos Baxter of Rochelle spent the afternoon in Dixon. Leonard Lutz of Viola township was here today.

Dramatic Notes

FAMILY THEATRE

The Family theatre has arranged an unusually strong program for week commencing May 27. For the first half the bill will include Romano & Defrie in catchy musical novelties that always please. The singer and Harpist, Lowell and Esther Drew in a delightful singing, talking and comedy number entitled, At the Drug Store. This skit is typical of scenes at a soda fountain so often witnessed in a drug store and will doubtless be a big success. For the last half beginning Memorial day, the program will include the Seven Russels in a minstrel first part, such as never seen in this locality. Singing, dancing and comedy predominate. Massey & Boulton present a comedy musical act, The Musical Rubes. This number is replete with novelties and comedy. The best motion pictures obtainable will be presented with new views at each performance.

PRINCESS THEATRE.

The management announces that for this week he has booked, for tonight, The Animated Weekly, containing New York Giants vs. Yankees playing ball for the benefit of the Titanic sufferers. Burning of a Western City, twelve blocks razed by fire. Chinese vs. Students, baseball game between Orientals and Berkley university, and five other big events, of the week. Rescued by Wireless, story of an American girl in Mexico in Revolutionary times, rescued by means of a wireless message sent by her lover. Broncho Bill's Love Affair will make you laugh until your sides ache.

The police patrol was called to the Ave. Saturday evening to pick up a section hand who had gotten too full of rye to navigate. He was locked up until the effects of his jubilee had worn off.

Hooray. A holiday this week. Only two more days to work.

But it's a safe bet that friend wife will find something for us to do. She believes implicitly in the old words: Satan always finds some work for idle hands to do. Therefore Satan will never get a chance at us—if she has her way about it.

An ardent Taft man has named his horse Theodore Roosevelt because "it's a rough ridin' brute, and makes him tired all over."

The firemen have accused ye of swiping a whip at Saturday evening's fire. They should realize that we would not carry around anything that might be taken from us and then used upon us. Likewise we believe that the pencil and typewriter are mightier than any 27 cent whip ever made.

Which reminds us of the scrap between the two wood workers on the Ave. Friday eve, which likewise we forgot to mention Sat. One of the fellows started after the other with a club. In the struggle he lost it, only to find it later in the hands of his antagonist, who was using it most effectively.

The fellows and fair ones who went to the ball game yesterday were not the only ones who were stuck. For instance, there were those who went to Grand Detour in open boats.

Scout laws have a wonderful effect on the boy's after life. If he is encouraged to be fairly in boyhood he seldom slips on that point in manhood. The same principle applies to honor, loyalty, service, brotherhood, kindness and the like. The outdoor life develops a clean, healthy body in which an unclean mind is very rare. The boy is transformed from a rowdy to a gentleman. A scout who has had much experience in camping trips is generally cheerful, philosophical and energetic. Various kinds of manual work trains the will as well as the hand.

KEEPS OUT OF WATER NOW

Gander With Fishing Line Tied to His Leg Has Lively Time With Pickrel.

A Wisconsin gander was so upset by experiments made upon and through him by a mischievous boy that for a long time he would not go into the water.

The gander's determination to abstain from water as a means of bathing grew out of the following circumstances:

The boy thought he would tie a fishing-line to the gander's leg and with a hook properly baited turn the bird out into the water. The bait was a frog.

The gander went into the mill pond, where he swam around for half an hour, turning "flip-flops" and diving for food. Suddenly he felt a pull at his leg and looked as surprised as the "lone fisherman" when he caught a whale.

The gander concluded that there was something the matter, and he looked to ascertain the cause. The pickrel on the hook gave several jerks, whereupon the gander decided that he wanted to go home.

He at once started for the shore, but the pickrel on the hook wanted to go the other way. The gander seemed frightened at first. Then he evinced signs of anger and tried to fly to shore, but the pickrel pulled him back.

After half an hour of the hardest work he had ever done, the gander came ashore dragging a six-pound pickrel up the bank.

The boy took off the pickrel and baited the hook with another frog. He tried to induce the gander to go in for another swim, but no amount of persuasion could get the bird to do so. He simply could not be driven in. For many weeks the gander would not go into the water. He would proceed with the rest of his flock to the water's edge, but there he would stop. He would seem to be arguing with them with reference to the danger they were courting.

BIG RUBY UNDER HIS SKIN

Burmese-Eurasian Was Used as Hiding Place for Jewel by His Father.

Surgeon Watson tells Tip about some strange smuggling, a story of Burmah rubies and diamonds that passed through this port undetected, if not unsuspected. The surgeon was called to a big hotel to see a gentleman with a painful arm. The patient was a yellow, slender, tawny blond, the left arm a little swollen and very painful. A hard lump was found under the skin just above the elbow, and this was pressed on the "funny" nerve that runs behind the elbow. The lump felt so queer and unusual that the surgeon took an X-ray shot at it and found it to be a big ruby, about five carats.

This is the novel story of a man with the ruby in his arm: He was a Burmese-Eurasian (his father half white). In his childhood his father had been the chief of a band of dacoits, cut-throat highwaymen, and had skillfully and painlessly inserted a number of stones into the layer of fat under the skin of his fat boy, to make him a walking cache of secret treasure. As a youth he went to a mission school, later was graduated from a "tech" school, and was now a highly successful business man. The man with the arm set with rubies would allow no more examinations or X-ray pictures. There was not a trace of scar near the ruby, so skillfully had the insert settling been made. When asked what he intended to do about his hidden treasures, he said that was for his father to say—if alive.—New York Press.

Man and His Ways. One day a well-known politician was enjoying a chat with a friend at a hotel, when a strange young man came up and said:

"Can I see you for a moment, Mr. Dash?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Dash, rising.

The young man led him across the room and seemed to have something important to say to him. Arrived in a corner, the stranger whispered in the politician's ear:

"I am of the staff of an evening paper, and I should like you to tell me what you think of the situation in the east."

Mr. Dash looked a little puzzled at first, then he said:

"Follow me."

Leading the way, he walked through the reading-room, through a passage into the dining-room, and drawing his visitor into the corner behind the hat rack, he whispered:

"I really don't know anything about it."

Massachusetts Game Farm. A game farm of between 5,000 and 6,000 acres in Carver and Plymouth has been acquired by the American Game Protective and Propagation association on a ten years lease, with option or purchase, and elaborate experiments are proposed for conserving the wild life of the New England forests and waters.

It is stipulated that after the expiration of the lease the farm shall continue for twenty years to be a sanctuary for game, whether or not the tract is bought. They do these things rather better in the old country, and it is proposed to import a Scotch gamekeeper to start a line of expert natives in the calling.—Springfield Republican.

HYDE TRIAL STARTS AGAIN

Physician Once More In Court For Alleged Swope Murder.

Kansas City, Mo., May 27.—Today, for the third time, Dr. Bennett Clark Hyde was put on trial for his life, the charge being the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope. He is accused, too, of trying to exterminate the Swope heirs to gain possession of the colonel's millions. Hyde has already been once convicted of the murder of Colonel Swope, but the conviction was reversed by the supreme court of Missouri and another trial was ordered. The second trial came to an abrupt end when Harry Waldron, a juror, escaped from the jury room and later was adjudged insane.

ROOSEVELT GUARD JAILED

Deputy Sheriff of Oyster Bay Lands in Police Station.

Yonkers, N. Y., May 27.—Richard J. Walsh, a deputy sheriff of Oyster Bay, is a prisoner in the Yonkers police station. He was locked up for promiscuously firing a revolver in Main street. He was held in $500 bail, charged with carrying a concealed weapon and in a like amount on a charge of malicious mischief. "What's Colonel Roosevelt and the rest of the people of Oyster Bay going to do for protection?" Walsh said.

Chinese Royalists Invest Towns After Severe Fighting.

Shanghai, May 27.—Advices received here state two small walled cities near Chaoayang, Manchuria, have fallen into the hands of a force of royalists after severe fighting. The casualties were not stated in the dispatch. The country to the west of Jehol is expected also to fall into the hands of the rebels as there has been much unrest there of late. News of the serious state of affairs is being suppressed by the authorities.

DEADBEATS OF ONE PATTERN

Veteran Credit Man Says They All Talk Alike and Try Same Tricks.

"Deadbeats," remarked an old credit man, "all talk alike. They are plausible to start with," he went on, "and are so free and easy they deceive every one but the most astute credit man. When they are dunned the first time they make a frank and positive promise to pay on a certain date. They do this so unreservedly that suspicion is disarmed. Of course they don't pay—but they have some of the best excuses in the world. They have had a run of hard luck, for instance. If the merchant takes this well, they will ask for more credit. If the merchant is obtuse they will come back with the statement that the merchant is making it unnecessarily hard for them to get along by crowding them; they will hint, also, that others have been soliciting their trade.

"Right there is the time to come down on them hard. Shut off their credit. Usually it is useless to sue, for such persons are judgment proof. The next move is to let them think you have forgotten them. They always are on the watch for the man who keeps nagging them all the time, but they grow careless of the man who leaves them alone. Some day they will leave an opening so that something can be attached or levied on, and then is the time to jump in and get your money.

"A favorite trick of the deadbeat is to offer his note for the account. These fellows think nothing of giving their notes. They would buy the continent of Asia if they could give their notes for it, and would clean up a fortune and get out of paying the note. Just listen to one of these deadbeats talk, remember what he says, and when the next one strikes you his language will be identical. It is almost as if it were the fixed ritual of their order."

PARISH SPLIT OVER LATIN

French and Germans of Metz at War Over the Proper Sound of "U."

The proper method of pronouncing Latin has long been a matter of controversy among the learned, but it is startling to find an entire parish disorganized by the question. This is the case in the parish of St. Maximin's, in Metz.

The older clergy of Alsace-Lorraine were brought up under French influence, and are accustomed to pronounce the church Latin with the soft French "u." The younger generation has been taught in the schools to pronounce the "u" full, according to the German and Italian manner.

Yesterday the choir of St. Maximin's pronounced the Latin of the pieces sung at mass in the German way. The parish priest, an old man, solemnly rebuked them, and they shut up their music books and left the church.

Probably the clergyman found the new pronunciation grated on his ears, and his outburst was due to the sensitiveness of a scholar.

The parishioners, however, are not scholars, and are now divided into two camps—those who maintain that, as Metz is now a German city, the church Latin should be sung in the German way, and those who hold that the choir is doing the work of German officials and attempting to destroy French influence.—New York Tribune.

The Slayer of Miac.

One of the most peculiar cases ever brought to the attention of the court of first instance recently came to light in Pangasinan Province.

Pedro Pabaira, with two others, was accused of the murder of Bernabe Miac, and on being brought to trial the first pleaded guilty, there being an aggravating circumstance of treachery, and was sentenced to 20 years in Bilibid.

Now it comes to light that the deceased was Miac, an outlaw, who deserted from the constabulary some time ago, falling with him various arms and accoutrements and who had engaged in outlawry since that time. There was a reward of 500 pesos out for his capture, dead or alive.

The question now is, Should the prisoner serve his term for killing a fellow-citizen, or should he be liberated and given a reward for killing an enemy to society?—Manila Weekly Times.

Captain Cook Statue.

None too soon, that renowned English navigator, Captain Cook, is to have a memorial in London. It will take the form of a statue of the explorer of the Northwest Passage, and is being executed by Sir Thomas Brock, R. A., the commissioners being the British Empire League. The statue is expected to be finished in November next, when it will be set up, appropriately enough, near the new Admiralty Arch, close to Trafalgar square. Many distinguished folk are expected to be present at the unveiling, which probably will be performed by the king, who, as a keen sailor, has taken a lot of interest in the memorial project.

THE ONE ABSOLUTELY UNSELFISH FRIEND

The one absolutely unselfish friend a man may have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog.

A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in sickness and in health. He will sleep on the cold ground, and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounters with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince.

When the last scene of all comes, and death takes his master in his embrace, and his body is laid in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his grave will the noble dog be found in health. He will sleep on the cold ground, and the wintry winds blow eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even to death.

—From a Speech made by United States Senator Vest of Missouri, in 1870, to Recover Damages for Death scores that come in encounters with a Dog.

EDITORIAL.

Next month, from June 10 to 15, a week has been set aside in Dixon for a Home Coming, a week of celebration and entertainment for the native sons and daughters of Dixon and Lee county who have for various reasons wandered away from the home hearth.

A committee called the Boosters' club have taken upon themselves the labor and responsibility of providing for the entertainment of Dixon's honored guests. They have furnished the money for the proper advertising of the event and are doing all in their power to reach a large number of old Dixon people and extend to them hearty invitations to come home for at least a week at this time and enjoy our humble hospitality. Judging from the personnel of the working committee there need be no doubt as to the sort of a good time that will be furnished.

But, although the committee is doing a wonderful lot of advertising and devoting considerable time and money in their efforts to make the Home Coming a great success, each one of you, as citizens of Dixon, can further the plans and make more certain a great week for Dixon. You each know at least a few persons who have moved away from Dixon, and who would undoubtedly like to come back for a visit, who have intended to for some time, but have never gotten around to it because there never has been a time that seemed any better for the trip than any other time. June 10 to 15 is the time that they have unconsciously waited for, and all that is needed to insure their being here is a hearty personal invitation from one of their old Dixon friends and a notification of the date of the week that has been set aside particularly for them and laid at their disposal.

Write that letter now, and make it good and strong, so that it won't leave any doubt in the mind of its recipient whether or not he or she is wanted.

WORTHLESS READING

"Worthless reading makes worthless people." Put that in big letters and hang it up in your sitting room where you can see it every day, and where the young people can see it. Maybe it will call their attention to the books they are reading, which are uplifting or degrading. They are one or the other. Parents don't seem to realize this. Nine out of ten of them do not seem to understand the significance of a book.

An education amounts to nothing if a boy or girl turns it into shallow reading. Their minds are filled with trash and their thinking is weak, when they read the kinds of books that are mostly read these days. It is a sad mistake to allow this matter to go at random, and to allow the youth's taste for reading to grow rank and wild.

The highest triumph of an education is the desire to read and habit to read good books. It makes no difference how well a boy gets along in mathematics or language. If he has no taste for good reading, it is all waste. Parents will take great interest in the marks their child gets at school, but they are hopelessly careless as to what those marks mean for him in his after life. It is time they were giving attention to this subject.

DECREASE IN ILLITERACY.

Comparison of recent issued census figures with those of 1900 indicate a substantial decrease in illiteracy in the United States. At the time the last census was taken the number of illiterates was 5,516,692, while in 1900 the number was 6,180,069. To thoroughly appreciate the decrease, the enormous increase in population is considered.

In only two states has illiteracy increased, New York and Connecticut, where there has been heavy congestion of incoming foreigners. In sections of these states immigrants have been herded together in settlements and deprived of educational advantages enjoyed by others of their kind. It is likely, too, that the figures have been affected by the number of mentally deficient persons who have been shipped into this country and who have had to be cared for in New York.

It costs New York over $3,400,000 to care for her foreign born insane patients annually. This gives an indication of the extent to which Europe is dumping on our shores persons who are likely to become public charges, and it in no small way accounts for the proportion of illiteracy in states having a heavy foreign population.

In the early days the negro was the important factor in statistics on illiteracy. This is no longer the case. In the southern states there is a smaller percentage of illiterates, both among the white and negro population than there was in 1900. Moreover, among the white population the number of illiterates has increased in only two states, Texas and Louisiana, and in the District of Columbia, while in the negro population there is one state, Oklahoma, in which the number has increased.

These numerical increases are the result largely of the migration of whites to Texas and the District of Columbia and of negroes to Oklahoma, while in Louisiana it is due to a considerable increase in the number of illiterates among the native whites or native parentage, although for this element there is also a decrease in the percentage of illiterates.

MIAMI BOY SCOUTS

REPORT GOOD TURNS

The Boy Scouts of Miami, Fla., after their annual banquet recently, were called upon by James Cope, their scoutmaster, to tell something of the different good turns they had performed in the last year. Every scout present told of many instances of helping others. Some picked glass out of the road, some removed from the street boards with nails in them, some helped little girls with their wheels at school, some prevented little boys from fighting, some bound up cuts which boys received while in bathing. One boy lent his bathing suit to another so that he might enjoy a dip in the bay. Another mailed letters for a friend and held horses while the owner transacted business. Others ran errands, repaired wheels, packed oranges for friends and assisted a person who fell from a boat in Miami river.

WAR ON THE MOSQUITO.

The Boy Scouts of America in St. Louis are enlisting in the war against the mosquito. There are 3,000 boy scouts in that city and Henry Thompson Jr., scout commissioner is lining them up against the pest. He is arranging to teach the boys how to disinfect ponds and pools where mosquitos are bred. He says: One gallon of petroleum, it has been said, will cover 1000 sq. ft. of water in such a way as to destroy mosquitos. The task of oiling ponds is one to which the boys, with their knowledge of outdoor life, are well adapted. It is the sort of work they are looking for, and some of the scoutmasters who have talked the matter over with members of their troops report that the boys are anxious to undertake it.

RED NECKTIE IS BARRED.

Freeport Standard: Red outer garments have been barred on the lines of the Chicago Great Western road. This rule is made in an announcement made by officials of the company.

Employees who have a penchant for red neckties, red vests and other apparel of vermilion hue are warned that their tastes do not comply with the wishes of the company. Among others, the company has issued the following rules:

No employee shall wear red colored outer garments, as they may be taken for stop signals.

Employees engaged in signal work must be familiar with the rules and comply with them.

No appliance or material of any kind may be placed within standard clearance lines.

Employees must acquaint themselves with the location of high voltage wires and avoid them.

MAKE DANDELION WINE.

The dandelion is now in full blossom and as usual scores of people are out every morning gathering the blossoms for the purpose of making wine. Hundreds of gallons of dandelion are made in Freeport yearly.—Freeport Standard.

CATS AT BELOIT, WIS., TO

BE EQUIPPED WITH BELLS

Beloit, Wis.—That Beloit house cats be equipped with bells in order that birds may be given notification of their approach is the suggestion made by Mayor Cunningham by a woman of the city. She says she saw a cat kill four birds yesterday, creeping up on them. The mayor may refer the matter to the council.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

HOW ABOUT THAT GARBAGE?

This subject was opened by some considerate citizen of Dixon in your paper a few evenings ago. Then it was dropped. Yet it is a matter of vital importance to all of us.

All say, "Swat the filthy fly." But what's the use if we do not first begin at his headquarters and remove the cause. The garbage pile is their breeding place. It is from there they load up with poisons and microbes, then sneak into our homes, alight on our food and inoculate us. Many people dig holes in their back yards in which their table refuse is thrown. Many throw it in the deep grass, or manure piles, to be removed later. What better can they do? Many throw it openly in the alleys, where the rain and hot sun soon turn it to a deadly mixture in which the flies revel. In going about the city one will see piles of cakes, bread and scraps of meat standing on the back porch, on which the ever hungry fly feasts. Well, what can we do to stop it? I think the city should take the matter in charge and act promptly, before the evil is upon us, and suggest that each family be required to provide a covered garbage can of such size as they may need, and the city take charge of the disposal of same, at least once a week. I believe the tax payers would cheerfully stand for this expense. It's rather economy than expense. It's simply taking necessary precaution to preserve the greatest thing in life—health. I think it would pay some man who lives just out of town to go into the hog business on a large scale, he gathering up these garbage cans, for a moderate weekly fee. He would be able to turn out some fat porkers with the aid of but little corn. Others may suggest a better plan. Let us hear from you. Nature has done its part for our beautiful city in the way of perfect drainage. If we now do our part no city in Illinois will be more healthful.

A CITIZEN.

THE AUTO SPEED
SEASON HAS ARRIVEDMany Violations of Law Reported—
Synopsis of Statute.

This season of the year there are many who are violating the automobile law. There are several who state that there is great danger outside of the city after dark and for the benefit of all who are concerned a synopsis of the law governing speed of these machines has been prepared as follows:

No person shall drive an automobile upon a public highway at greater rate of speed than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic, so as not to endanger life and limb of others on the road. A speed of ten miles an hour through the business portion of the city, fifteen miles in the country outside of the city and six miles around corners where the view is obstructed is allowed by the law.

Racing upon the public highway is prohibited.

Upon approaching a person or vehicle in the public highways the driver of a car shall give notice of his approach, and if necessary stop the car. If any injury occurs through negligence of the driver of the automobile he shall, upon request give his name and also the name of the owner of the car.

Upon meeting a team each shall turn to the right and give half of the highway. If an auto driver overtakes a buggy or other vehicle on his approach he shall pass to the left of such vehicle, which upon signal shall turn to the right to allow such auto to pass.

GRANDMOTHER'S HERBS.

Almost every American man or woman recalls the collection of roots, herbs and barks made every fall for the home medicine chest.

It is interesting to note that the most successful remedy for female ills the world has ever known had its origin nearly forty years ago in one of these home medicine chests and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made today in immense quantities from these same roots and herbs with extreme accuracy, care and cleanliness. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schrock have returned to Dixon after spending some time traveling in the west. Mr. Schrock has resigned from his position in Omaha and will leave in a few weeks for Chicago, where he accepted another position.

WHEN WEALTH IS A CURSE.

New York Evening Sun: Labor is honorable. Loafing is a disgrace. Activity is healthful. Idleness induces disease. When wealth banishes industry it is a curse. An adversity that drives to work may become a lasting blessing. Riches do not save out success any more than poverty.

Sir Walter Scott only wrote when poverty whipped him to the task. Yet many a master hand has been put to rest in the lap of luxury suddenly pained or an inherited fortune. Some have proved their superior greatness by rising above the somnambulant influence of money. Usually, however, poverty protects health and spurs deepest ability. Hence earth's greatest endeavors have come from the poor.

The genius seldom reaches its highest usefulness. He feels too lightly the need of toil. He loses the sense of the practical and becomes only a dreamer. Labor done keeps a man normal and in vital touch with his fellows. The idler is sure to degenerate. The sweat of the brow is a tonic insuring manhood's strength. He who hoards wealth for selfish indulgences is a failure in life. He is only endured, never honored. His death is unnoted and no footprints of his are left on life's long road.

The brainless top who adorns his body with the haberdasher's gaudiest display and saunters aimlessly along the street attracts only the eye-glance of similar empty heads. He dries up like a dead wasp in his idleness and is of little or no worth. The hobo is the other idler. The same mind never envies his career. He has a shambling gait, deadened brain, an atrophied heart, huddled up soul, all the result of living without labor.

WHAT IS YOUR IDEA

of the services of a bank? That they are confined to protecting and safeguarding the surplus money of depositors from burglars and from loss by fire, in keeping this surplus so that the depositors can have it to use at any time he wants it and in loaning money to customers when they need it? These advantages are very material. They offer good and sufficient reason for keeping your money in a bank but if they cover your conception of the entire usefulness of The City National Bank, the essential advantages we offer to our patrons, we shall be pleased to have you come in and let us explain to you some of the other advantages which accrue to the man who makes use of our check account plan for the protection and care of his income.

GEO. M. GEHANT IS HARMON PRINCIPAL

DIXON YOUNG MAN HONORED BY APPOINTMENT AS PRINCIPAL OF HARMON SCHOOLS

At a recent meeting of the board of school directors of the Harmon public schools, George M. Gehant, of this city, was chosen principal for the coming year, from the various applicants who had applied for the position.

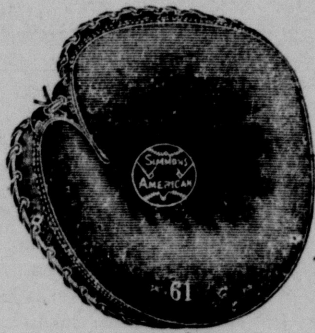

Mr. Gehant, who has had charge of the intermediate department of the Harmon schools for the year ending May 24th, closed a very successful school year. Mr. Gehant gets his position by his ability to "deliver the goods," in discipline, as well as an able instructor, which are the salient features of school management.

Mr. Gehant is a graduate of the North Dixon high school of the class of 1911. This class consisted of seventeen members, nine of whom took up the pedagogical profession, and who have already made a record even in the dawn of their vocation.

POLITENESS A BUSINESS ASSET

The statistician does not live who can compute the value of a smile in the business world. It makes friends and friends are assets, just as enemies are liabilities—one can never tell what they are liable to cost.

One of the most noteworthy features of the evolution of business life is the passing of the grouch. As a business asset politeness and a genial disposition are invaluable and are almost indispensable to success. The time of the average business man is valuable and he is forced to recognize that moments lost are the equivalent of money lost but a moment's display of courtesy and politeness is not a waste of time for the busiest.—Yokum Times.

ST. AMBROSE WON LAST COLLEGE GAME

VICTORY SNATCHED FROM THE HANDS OF THE LOCALS IN LAST INNING.

RAIN STOPPED THE MASSACRE

Dixon Stars Were Eating Franklin Alive—Mt. Morris Regulars Play Here Next Sunday—Better Game Is Hoped For—D. U. H. S. 4; DeKalb, 0.

Fickle Dame Fortune turned against the Dixon college baseball team at the very end of their game with St. Ambrose college team of Davenport Saturday afternoon, and as a result the locals dropped their third straight game and the last one of the season, right at the moment it looked as if they had it sewed up in their victory bag.

The game stood for Dixon 2 to 1 when St. Ambrose came up for their last bat. Murphy, first man up, slammed a long one to center, and Mishler misjudged it. He ran under the ball, and then tried to get it on the jump. He succeeded only in knocking it down, Murphy going to second. But that error of judgment turned the tide. Haley, next man up, went out second to first, and Huber lost control for a moment, passing Brown Wadle and Lew followed with clean singles over short. McGinnis went out on a fly, but Monahan booted Hynes' effort. Fortunately Porter fanned, ending the agony, after three runs had been shoved across.

Dixon went out in order in their half, Hunter flying to right and Hoberg and Huber whiffing. It was a hard game to lose, for both teams had been playing excellent ball up to that time, and it surely looked like Dixon victory.

The St. Ambrose boys are a gentlemanly lot of young men, and Father O'Neill, their athletic director, and an example of a real sportsman.

The crowd was about as large as all that have attended the college games—not a handful. Great encouragement for Prof. Edwards, who was urged by Dixon people to take over the college!

Monahan had an off day at bat and in the field. It's so seldom Mike fails completely that the fans will be dead pleased that he's got it all out of his system.

STARS, 11; FRANKLIN, 2.
Welcome rain stopped a punk exhibition of the national pastime at Athletic park Sunday afternoon in the third inning, after the Stars had done just about as they pleased with the Franklin Grove Regulars. The visitors wore baseball uniforms, had bats and wore gloves. To that extent they resembled a ball team. Other comment is unnecessary. The score will tell the details of the burlesque:

Starlinst
Mt. Morris Independents next. Here's hoping they're better than that bunch of pulks of yesterday.

The spectators had great times dodging the leakage through the grandstand roof. It is very evident that there are some holes in the roof. Lightner pulled a swell catch off of Conlon in the third, running from deep left to the short foul line and grabbed off the Texas leaguer that headed that way.

Wood would have done much better if he would have stretched out in front of the balls that came into left. They would not have got past him so much, now would they?

D. U. H. S., 4; DeKalb, 0.

The Dixon Union high school team went to DeKalb yesterday afternoon, and incidentally yshowed the DeKalb students what a fast high school team can do to a team that is not quite so fast, for when the locals boarded the Sterling passenger for home, they had the game and the dinner's percentage of the receipts. It was a swell game, in which DeKalb was kept from marring the pan while Dixon crossed it 4 times.

IN MEMORIAM—SLEEP ON.

Mary Bradstreet Hausen.

Heroic dead! no sound disturbs your sleep,

As comrade feet with slow and measured tread

March 'round your resting place—by music led,

And children come with flowers, and silence deep,

Now falls upon the heart as memories sweep,

And oh! what loving glories, soldier dead,

Arise in haloes o'er your grassed bed

And loved ones comes to honor, mourn and weep.

So, we the garland flowers in love bestow,

While floats the old war flag upon the breeze,

In sheens of shimmering glory, save as when

It waved o'er battle fields of death and woe.

Heroic dead! sleep on; the murmuring seas,

The hills and vales give back their dead again.

James McCrea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, recently started a movement in Philadelphia and raised $2,000 for this help of the boy scouts in that city.

Fifteen thousand boy scouts from St. Louis planted several hundred trees in Forest Park, St. Louis, Arbor Day.

PANSIES.

The New Blood-Red

It is a fitting time to write of my favorite flower, says Prof. Cuthbert, the famous horticulturist in the June Strand. It celebrates the centenary of the beginning of its improvement this year. It was in the year 1812 that a daughter of the then Earl of Tankerville transplanted into her garden, from the hedgerows, plants of the wild heartease, and gave them good cultivation. She gathered seeds from the best flowers every year, and became the possessor of some improved specimens.

This is exactly what all the keen growers of pansies have been doing ever since, and by following the process along distinct lines, the pansies of different colors and shapes have been evolved. The old pansies are to prim and precise to please the modern taste. Nowadays something large and showy is desired and such we have got in the class called fancy pansies. Many of these flowers which can be grown three and four inches in diameter and are possessed of the most brilliant colorings—violet, yellow, crimson, rose, primrose, black and white, all these and many other shades in fantastic combinations.

A really red pansy has long been the desire of florists and for 25 years I have worked to obtain it, doing exactly what the daughter of Lord Tankerville did—gathering seed each year from the plants which gave a little more red in their coloring than any of their thousands of neighbors in the seed beds. In the year 1898 I obtained a strain of pansies which were wallflower-red in color. The process of selection was not stopped then. It has gone on ever since, and I think we have now obtained the finest pansy I ever grew.

It is blood-red in color, of medium size, nearly round in shape. In the center the blotches are intensely dark, the little eyebrows are white and the eye itself is bright yellow. A gem of purest ray serene. Thousands upon thousands of seedlings were grown before this novelty was obtained, and there is no more fascinating department of gardening than raising seedlings and watching day by day, the buds of the plants open out.

The anticipations and expectations are always pleasant, and no worthy florist's enthusiasm is ever damped by disappointment. Onward he always goes, hoping to realize the aim he has set before him.

It was one fine summer morning that the new pansy I have referred to was discovered blooming among its neighbors, and it was on that account fittingly called Sunrise.

LOVE.

For Love is the strangest of all paradoxes, and those who follow it are happiest when they are most miserable.

The bruises, the pains, the tortments, the thirst that is never quenched, the hunger that is never satisfied, the heart that aches for that which it seeks, and aches when it gets it; all these attendants on the Road to Love are what make it Royal.

The destination, Paradise, may be uncertain, but it is Paradise all the way.

For Love is Heaven, and Heaven is Love.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Road to Philadelphia. It must have been 10 o'clock, and, if I had slept at all, I was scarcely conscious of it. All about me the men lay outstretched upon the ground, still in their shirt-sleeves, as they had fought, their guns beside them. The night was clear and hot, scarcely a breath of air moving. Here and there against the sky-line passed the dark silhouette of a sentry. There was no sound of firing only an occasional footfall to break the silence of the night. The wounded had been taken to the field hospitals at the rear; down in our front lay the bodies of the dead, and among these shone the dim lights of lanterns where the last searching parties were yet busy at their gruesome task. I was weary enough to sleep, every muscle of my body aching with fatigue, but the excitement of the day, the possibility of the morning, left me restless. I had received no wound, other than a slight thrust with a bayonet, yet felt as though pummeled from head to foot. The victory was ours—the army realized this truth clearly enough; we had repulsed the red-coats, driven them back with terrible losses; we had seen their lines shiver under our fire, officers and men falling, and the remnants fleeing in disorder. It meant nothing now that a force outnumbering us yet remained intact, and in strong position. Flushed with victory, knowing now we could meet the best of them, we longed for the morning to dawn so we might complete the task.

I reviewed the vivid incidents of the day, looking up at the stars, and wondered who among those I knew were yet living, who were dead. I thought of others in those lines of the enemy, whom I had known, speculating on their fate. Then along our rear came a horseman or two, riding slowly. A sentry halted them, and I arose on one elbow to listen.

"Lawrence? Yes, sir, Major Lawrence is lying over there by the scrub oak."

I got to my feet, as the first rider approached.

"This you, Lawrence?" asked a voice I instantly recognized as Hamilton's. "You fellows all look alike tonight. Where is your horse, major?"

"I have been on foot all day, sir," I answered saluting.

"Ah, indeed; well, you will have need for a horse tonight. Wainwright, turning to the man with him, 'Is your mount fresh?'"

"Appears to be, sir; belonged to a British dragoon this morning."

"Let Major Lawrence have him. Major, ride with me."

We passed back slowly enough toward the rear of the troops, through the field hospitals, and along the edge of a wood, where a battery of artillery was encamped. We rode boot to boot, and Hamilton spoke earnestly.

"The battle is practically won, Lawrence, in spite of Charles Lee," he said soberly. "Of course there will be fighting tomorrow, but we shall have the red-coats well penned in before daybreak, and have already captured ammunition enough to make us easy on that score. Poor, and the Carolina men, are over yonder, while Woodford is moving his command to the left. At dawn we'll crush Clinton into fragments. Washington wants to send a despatch through to Arnold in Philadelphia, and I recommended you, as you know the road. He remembered your service before, and was kind enough to say you were the very man. You'll go gladly?"

"I should prefer to lead my own men tomorrow, sir."

"Pshaw! I doubt if we have more than a skirmish. Sir Henry will see his predicament fast enough. Then there will be nothing left to do, but guard prisoners."

"Very well, colonel; I am ready to serve wherever needed."

"Of course you are, man. There should not be much danger connected with this trip, although there will be stragglers in plenty. I'm told that Clinton lost more than three hundred deserters crossing Camden."

Headquarters were in a single-roomed cabin at the edge of a ravine. A squad of cavalrymen were in front, their horses tied to a rail fence, but within Washington was alone, except for a single aide, writing at a rude table in the light of a half-dozen candles. He glanced up, greeting us with a slight inclination of the head.

"A moment, gentlemen."

He wrote slowly, as though framing his sentences with care, occasionally questioning the aide. Once he paused, and glanced across at Hamilton.

"Colonel, do you know a dragoon named Mortimer?"

"I have no recollection of ever having met the man, sir. I have written him orders, however; he is a scout attached to General Lee's headquarters."

"Yes; I recall the name. He is the one who brought us our first definite information this morning of Clinton's position. I remember now, you were not with me when he rode up—young, slender lad, with the face of a girl. I could but notice his eyes; they were as soft and blue as violets! Well, an hour ago he came here for a favor; it seems the boy is a son of Colonel Mortimer, of the queen's rangers."

"Pardon Me, Sirs, but There Are Horsemen Ahead."

"Indeed; Wayne reported the colonel killed in front of his lines."

"Not killed, but seriously wounded. The son asked permission to take him home to a place called Elmhurst near Laurel Hill."

"I know the plantation, sir," I said, my interest causing me to interrupt. "It is on the Medford road."

"Ah, you have met the lad, possibly, and he turned his face toward me. 'The boy interested me greatly.'"

"No, sir; I endeavored to find him at Lee's headquarters, but failed. I have met his father and sister."

"A lovely girl, no doubt."

"To my mind, yes, sir."

His grave face lighted with a sudden smile.

"I sometimes imagine, Colonel Hamilton," he said quietly, "that this unhappy war might be very pleasantly concluded if we could only turn our young officers over to the ladies of the enemy. Would such a plan meet with your approval, major?"

"I should prefer it to the present method."

"No doubt, and Mistress Mortimer?—but let that pass, until we hold council of war upon the subject. Just now we shall have to be content with the more ordinary plans of campaign. I gave the boy permission to remove his father, and they are upon the road ere this. I would that all the British wounded had homes close at hand. You have informed the major of his mission, I presume, Hamilton, and there is nothing I need add."

"He understands clearly, sir."

"Then I will complete the letter. Be seated, gentlemen."

He wrote for several minutes steadily, once pausing to consult a map, signed the paper, and enclosed it in another sheet, across which he scratched a line of address.

"You will deliver this to General Arnold in person, major; do not spare horse-flesh. You were in the action today?"

"With Maxwell's brigade."

"That was a hard fight along the stone wall; you came out unhurt?"

"A slight bayonet wound, sir; nothing to incapacitate me from duty."

"Very well; take ten dragoons as escort. Hamilton will write you an order. I have told Arnold our victory is practically complete. Clinton may slip away in the night, for he is a wily old fox, but he has lost his power to injure us in the Jerseys. I hope to bottle him up before morning, so that any retreat will be impossible, but even if he succeeds in getting his army to the transports at Sandy Hook, he has lost prestige, and the victory is ours. Good-bye, major, and the Lord guard you on your journey."

Ten minutes later, mounted on a rangy sorrel, my dragoon escort trotting behind, I rode south on the Plattsboro road, as swiftly as its terrible condition would warrant.

The evidences of war, the wreckage of battle, were everywhere. Several times we were compelled to leap the stone walls to permit the passage of marching troops being hurried to some new position; several batteries passed us, rumbling grimly through the night, and a squadron of horse galloped by, the troopers greeting us with shouts of inquiry.

We took to the fields, but, as there seemed no end to the procession, I turned my horse's head eastward, confident we were already beyond the British rear-guard, and struck out across country for another north and south road. We advanced now at a swift trot, the sound of our horses' hoofs on the soft turf almost the only noise, and, within an hour, came again to parallel fences, and a well travelled road.

This was the road running a mile, or so, to the west of Elmhurst. It led as straight as any, toward Philadelphia, but whatever stragglers the British army had left behind would be found along here. However, they would probably be scattered fugitives, unwilling to interfere with as strong an armed party as this of mine. If I was alone it would be safer to turn aside. Then, it was a strong temptation to me to pass thus close to Elmhurst. It would be after daylight when we reached there; I might even get a glimpse across the apple orchard of the great white house. Would Claire be there? It seemed to me quite probable, as Eric was taking the wounded colonel home for nursing. The girl's face rose before me against the black night, and my heart beat fast. When I came back, I would ride to Elmhurst—surely she would be there then.

The sergeant touched my arm.

"Pardon me, sir, but there are horsemen ahead."

"Indeed? I was lost in thought, Conroy. Coming this way?"

"No, sir, they seem to be traveling south slowly. I noticed them first as we turned the corner back there; I could see outlines against the sky."

"How large a party? They form merely a lumping shadow to my eyes."

"Not more than three or four, sir, with a covered rig of some kind. They're halted, now; heard us coming, I reckon."

"I could perceive the little group, but merely as a black smudge. Then a mounted figure seemed to detach itself from the darkness, and advance toward us."

"Halt your men, sergeant," I said quietly. "I'll ride forward and learn what the fellow wants."

"But, my boy, this is a mystery—" "Do you mean to insist you do not know—have not recognized me?"

"I—what can you mean?"

"Merely that I am Claire Mortimer," and lifting the hat, the young officer was revealed in the dim light as my lady. "Surely you knew?"

"But I did not," I insisted, earnestly, recovering from my surprise, and leaning forward to look into her face. "Why should I? General Washington told me it was Eric who came for his father. Why should I suspect in this darkness?"

"I—I represented myself as Eric," she stammered.

"And was it you also who rode into our lines yesterday, telling of Clinton's whereabouts?"

"Yes," hesitatingly, her eyes lifting to my face.

"But you must listen to me, Major Lawrence; you must learn why I did so unwomanly an act."

"First answer one question."

"Gladly."

"Is there an Eric Mortimer?"

"There is," she answered frankly; "my brother. It was for his sake I did all this."

A moment I sat in my saddle silently, our horses walking side by side through the night, while I endeavored to grasp the meaning of her confession. I knew that she was riding bare-headed, her face turned away.

"Go on," I said at last, "tell me the whole story."

"I will," firmly, her head uplifted. "I was tempted to do so at Elmhurst, but something seemed to seal my lips. There is now no longer any excuse for silence. I—I wish you to know, and, then, perhaps, you may feel more kindly disposed toward me."

"Your father is aware—"

"No, not even father. He is scarcely conscious of what is going on about him. Peter knows, and Tonepach," with a wave of her hand into the dark shadows.

"They are with you, then—keeping guard over him?"

"Yes; they have known from the beginning; not everything, of course, for that was not necessary. Peter is an old servant, silent and trustworthy. He would never question an act of mine, while the Indian has reason to be grateful and loyal to me. Whatever indiscretion, Major Lawrence, I may have been guilty of, I have gone nowhere unaccompanied by these two. You will believe that?"

"Yes, and whatever else you tell me."

"That, now, must necessarily be the entire story. As I proceed you will be convinced, I think, that only a true confidence in you would enable me to speak with such frankness. I—I know of no one else in whom I could confide, and—the time has come when I must have help—the help of a friend. I should have explained to my father—indeed intended to do so—but now he is helpless to aid me. There is no one else I feel able to trust. I—I—were you in my thought tonight; I—I am not sure I did not even pray for your coming, and—and then God sent you."

My hand sought hers, and held it against my horse's mane.

"Tell it in your own way, dear," I whispered.

She flashed one glance into my face, leaving her hand in mine, while our horses took a dozen strides.

"It will not take long," she began, in so low a voice, that I leaned forward to listen, "and you already know many of the characters and can judge their motives. I have been strangely situated since the commencement of this war, only, surely ours is not the only family divided in its loyalty. My father was a King's officer, and felt it his duty to serve the crown. While he has said little, yet I know that down in his heart his sympathies have been with the Colonies. Those of my brother were openly from the start, and my father has never attempted to interfere with his actions. They talked it all over together, and Eric chose his own course. Only Alfred Grant made trouble, presuming on what he termed our engagement, and endeavored to force my brother to join the King's troops. The two quarreled bitterly, and Eric, a hot-headed boy, struck him. Grant has never forgiven that blow, nor Eric's influence over me. To the latter he attributes my "Could you send your men forward, and ride with me a moment? You could catch up with them easily within a mile or two. I—I have a word I wish to say to you—alone."

The voice was low, tremulous; the request one I saw no reason to refuse.

"Why, certainly. Sergeant, take your men down the road at an easy trot. I will join you presently."

They went by us like shadows, leaving a cloud of dust behind. The boy spoke a brief word to those in charge of the carriage, and it also began to move slowly forward.

"We will go ahead," he said, sulking the action to the word. "What I wish to say will not take long."

Within a minute, riding side by side, our horses walking rapidly, we were out of sight of the lumping shadow of the ambulance. I glanced aside curiously at my companion, noting the outlines of his slender, erect figure, wondering vaguely what his message could be. Had Claire spoken to him of me? Was he going to tell me about his sister? We must have ridden a quarter of a mile before he broke the silence.

"Major Lawrence," he began, and I noticed the face was not turned toward me. "I am sure you are not deceived, although you act the part well."

"I hardly understand."

"Oh, but I am sure you do. I—I could not permit you to go away displeased."

"But, my boy, this is a mystery—" "Do you mean to insist you do not know—have not recognized me?"

dislike—yet this was not true; it was because as I grew older I realized the ill character of the man."

She paused a moment, gathering the threads of thought more closely. I did not speak, preferring she should tell the story in her own way.

"The two did not meet after that for many months. The Queen's Rangers, in which regiment my father secured Grant a commission, were in New York, while Eric was stationed with the river with Morgan's riflemen. When New Jersey was invaded, both commands came south, and, because of Eric's knowledge of this country, he was detailed as scout. This reckless life was greatly to his liking; I saw him occasionally by appointment, usually at Elmhurst, and became aware that his old quarrel with Captain Grant was seemingly forgotten. There appeared to be some understanding, some special connection between them. They met once, at least, and I delivered one note between them."

"Perhaps I can explain that later," I interrupted, "from something mentioned at Lee's headquarters."

"You! Oh, I wish you could, for their relationship has mystified me; has made me afraid something might be wrong with—with Eric."

"I think not, dear; say rather with Grant."

"If that be so, then it may prove the key to all the mystery. What made their intimacy so difficult to understand was that I knew the captain's dislike of Eric had in no way diminished. He spoke of him as savagely as ever."

"Perhaps he played a part—his ultimate purpose revenge."

"It might be that—yes, it might be that, and—and the consummation of that revenge may account for all which has occurred. But I must go on with what I had to tell."

I had forgotten the passage of time, the men riding steadily in advance, constantly increasing their distance, even the possible importance of the dispatch within my jacket pocket. The evident distress of the girl riding beside me, whose tale, I felt sure, would fully justify her strange masquerade in male garments, her risk of life and exposure to disgrace in midst of fighting armies, held me neglectful of all else. I realized that, whatever the cause, I had unconsciously become a part of its development, and that I was destined now to be even more deeply involved. Whatever the mystery, I must solve it for her sake. My hand again sought hers, holding it in firm grasp. There was a sound of hoofs on the dusty road behind us.

"It is Peter," she whispered. "What can have happened?"

The rider barely paused, turning his horse's head even as he spoke hastily.

"Captain Grant is with the ambulance, Mistress Claire," he reported. "He came up alone about five minutes ago."

MUSICIANS TO RAISE FUNDS

To Help Widows and Orphans of Members of Titanic Band.

Omaha, Neb., May 27.—When President J. N. Weber of New York made his opening address at the convention of the American Federation of Musicians here today, he suggested a plan that met with the instant approval of the 200 delegates. This is the raising of a memorial fund for the widows and orphans of the Titanic and to erect a marble shaft to those brave bandmen. A petition to gather the fund will be circulated among the 585 local organizations of the federation, the members of which number about 60,000 musicians.

MRS. FARRAR IN NEW YORK

Wife of Former Chaplain to George V. in America.

New York, May 27.—Mrs. Frederick Percival Farrar, wife of the disgraced clergyman whose appointment as chaplain in ordinary and domestic chaplain to the king and honorary domestic chaplain to Queen Alexandra was canceled last November by King George, has arrived in New York from England. Richard Harding Davis, the author, and Charles Belmont Davis, her brother, met her at the pier.

Another Titanic Victim Found.

St. Johns, N. F., May 27.—The steamer Algerin reports by wireless of having recovered the body of a member of the Titanic crew named McCready, a native of Belfast.

HE WENT OVER THE WABASH

Story of Stuyvesant Fish's Futile Effort to Teach a Switchman to Be Polite.

Elmer T. Stevens of Charles H. Stevens & Bros. told the following story at the Association of Commerce luncheon at the La Salle hotel in Chicago:

"When Stuyvesant Fish was president of the Illinois Central railroad, he was sitting in his office one morning with the door closed, looking over some reports. The door was suddenly opened and in came an Irishman with his hat on his head and his pipe in his mouth, and, walking up to Mr. Fish, he said: 'I want a pass to St. Louis.'"

"President Fish, somewhat surprised, looked up and said, 'Who are you?'"

"The man replied, 'I am Pat Casey, one of your switchmen.'"

"President Fish, thinking it was a good chance to teach the man a little lesson in etiquette, said: 'Now, Pat, I am not going to say that I will refuse your request, but there are certain forms that a man should observe in asking a favor. You should knock at the door before you come in, and when I say 'Come in,' you should LADIES wanted to join club where all kinds of needlework is disposed of; send stamp for reply. Colorado Needlework Club, Box 700, Denver, Colorado.

As farmers in Canada are going broke and land prices tumbling, no one will buy it. I have talked and advertised for ten years that only a third or less of either the Dakotas was good for farming and the good part of S. D. too high to buy. The last two crops show what is best. Cavalier county had crops in 1910 that paid for the land and also in 1911. 1912 promises much better and I will still give you a chance to pay for a farm with one crop. As an investment land here will pay better interest on $100 an acre than land in Ill. at the prices it is selling at as there so much of the rent has to be paid out for taxes, improvements and insurance. Having been here over ten years I predict Hundred Dollar land here in five to seven years. The farmers here are buying it and they are making money faster than any other farmers in the world.

THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF DIXON PEOPLE SIMILARLY SITUATED

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Dixon residents? After you have read the following quietly answer the question.

Julius Gottlieb, 418 W. First St., Dixon, Ill., says: "My back pained me for some time and I was often so lame and sore that it was hard for me to stoop. The secretions from my kidneys were irregular in passage and I was thus convinced that my kidneys were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a box at Leake Bros., Drug Store and commenced their use. My experience with this remedy was very satisfactory and I am pleased to acknowledge the benefit I received." (Statement given April 14, 1909)

A Lasting Effect
Mr. Gottlieb was interviewed on January 4, 1910 and he added to the above: "You may continue to publish my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. The relief they gave me has been permanent."

Couldn't Stand for Beetle.
A young lion-tamer of Jassy, Roumania, fainted the other day in the cage at a moment when the animals were perfectly quiet. She was removed before they did more than show signs of restlessness, and on recovering consciousness exclaimed: "Until the beetle crawling on one of the bars is taken off I am not going in again!"

Who is the Best Patriot?
Is it not just that what belongs to the people should be shared by the people? Is a man with no capacity for fighting more useful to his country than a soldier? Is a citizen inferior to a slave? Is an alien, or one who owns some of his country's soil, the best patriot?—Tiberius Gacchus.

HIGHWAY NOTICE.
Public Letting of Contract.
Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the undersigned commissioners of highway of the Town of Palmyra, County of Lee, State of Illinois, on Thursday, the Sixth day of June, A. D. 1912, for constructing hard roads in said town to be located as follows:

Road No. 1. Beginning at the terminus of the present main macadam road in Section Nine (9), in said Township, in the road running from east to west through the center of Section Seven (7), Eight (8), and Nine (9), in said Township and extending thence west in said road until the funds provided for building said road shall be exhausted.

Road No. 2. What is known as the Town Line road, being the road on the line between Townships Twenty-one (21), and Twenty-two (22), in said Town, beginning at the terminus of the present main macadam road at a point in Section Thirty-four (34), in Township Twenty-two (22), and Section Three (3), in Township Twenty-one (21), and extending west in said road until the funds provided for building of said road shall be exhausted.

And the same will be let by contract publicly to the lowest responsible bidder for the whole amount, or by sections, at the hour of Two o'clock p. m., Thursday, the Sixth day of June, A. D. 1912, at the Palmyra Town Hall.

We reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Plans and specifications of the work to be done on said roads can be seen at the office of the Town Clerk of said Town.

Dated, Town of Palmyra, Lee County, State of Illinois, this Sixteenth day of May, A. D. 1912.

F. W. BRAUER,
FREEMONT LANDIS,
JOHN W. LAWTON,
Commissioners of Highways

WOMAN DIPPED IN TAR

Thugs Shower Blows and Kicks Upon Her.

Claims She is Victim of Defamatory Gossip as Well as Assault—Authorities Investigating.

Ocean City, Md., May 27.—Never has Worcester county been more stirred than it is now over the action of a gang of thugs who, claiming official protection, dragged Mary Holzman, an unprotected woman, from her home in Ocean City, showered blows and kicks upon her face and limbs and concluded their brutal performance by dipping her into a vat of tar in the presence of her eleven-year-old son, who struggled to prevent the outrage.

One of the most startling features of the incident is the fact that the town lights were out when the assault was committed. Mrs. Holzman says the switch was turned through the connivance of town officials. However this may be, the men guilty of the outrage boasted while they were subjecting her to the indignities that their act had the sanction of the town council.

Sheriff Harrison, acting under instructions from State's Attorney Johnson, visited Mary Holzman and it was arranged that she should be taken to Snow Hill, the county seat of Worcester. She demanded an investigation of the assault and the incidents leading up to it, claiming that she had been the victim of defamatory gossip as well as an assault.

Mrs. Holzman's face was so discolored from the blows that those who saw her following the assault did not recognize her.

WHERE DID SOUL GO?

When Girl's Heart Action Ceased for 120 Seconds.

Query is Result of Surgeon Massaging Heart of "Dead" Patient Until Organ Resumed Action.

New York, May 27.—Where did the soul of Anna Loebenstein go, when heart action ceased for 120 seconds?

That question, resulting from the now famous case, in which a surgeon who had just operated upon the Schenectady girl, when respiration stopped, placed his hand within the abdominal cavity and massaged the life-giving organ until it returned to its normal work, has aroused discussion.

Here are two expert opinions, by widely known psychologists: "I don't know. Nobody knows. But no doubt there will be plenty of discussion on the case by those who are afraid to express their ignorance. For one, I am not afraid to do so."—Dr. James H. Hyslop.

"I would answer the question with another: 'Where do we go when we go to sleep?' The girl was not dead, and that fits the case."—Dr. William Hanna Thomson.

Although Doctor Hyslop declined to attempt any detailed reply to the question, he was not surprised that the girl has only partially recovered her memory. That she does recall events of the past twelve months did not startle him.

"It is quite probable," said the noted authority, "but with proper nutrition her brain will respond and she should recover her memory. Beyond that I do not know any more than any one else."

CITY PLANNING MEET IS ON

Delegates From U. S., Canada and Europe Gather in Boston.

Boston, Mass., May 27.—About 300 delegates from cities of the United States, Canada and Europe have come to Boston to attend the fourth national conference on city planning, which opens tonight. This afternoon they were the guests of Mayor Fitzgerald at a formal luncheon at the Lenox.

The session this evening will be held in the public library, and the meaning and progress of city planning will be the subject of papers to be read by Frederick Law Olmsted, Prof. George E. Swain of Harvard and Arnold W. Brunner of New York. The deliberations of the delegates will close on Wednesday with a dinner.

WEALTHY WIDOW SUICIDES

Mrs. Belle B. Heiden of New York Plunges Eight Stories to Death.

New York, May 27.—Mrs. Belle Heiden, the wealthy widow of the late Charles M. Heiden, former head of the Albany Brewing company, plunged out of a window of her apartment on the eighth floor of the exclusive San Jacinto apartment hotel in East Sixtieth street, to the sidewalk, and was instantly killed here.

SWEARS TITANIC

RAN FULL SPEED

Fireman on Duty as Ship Hits Iceberg Gives Senate His Story.

Senator William Alden Smith Takes New Testimony Aboard the White Star Liner Olympic at Her Dock in New York City.

New York, May 27.—New evidence purporting to show that the Titanic was going at full speed with fire under all but five of its 24 boilers the night it sank was obtained here aboard the White Star liner Olympic, by Senator William Alden Smith, chairman of the senate investigating committee.

Senator Smith, accompanied by Rear Admiral Watt, chief of the bureau of construction in the navy department, boarded the liner to take the testimony of Captain Haddock and Ernest Moore, the wireless operator. He also questioned Fred Barrett, who was chief fireman of the Titanic, but now is employed on the Olympic.

Both Captain Haddock and Moore testified that a message was received from the Carpathia at 2:35 p. m., April 15, saying: "Bruce Ismay under operation."

Tells How Comrades Died.
A dramatic scene occurred when Senator Smith took Barrett's testimony in the engine-room in the forward part of the Olympic. As Barrett told his story he stood in virtually the same spot where he had been on the Titanic when it collided with the iceberg.

"I was talking to the second engineer when we got the danger signal," explained the fireman. "A red light came up in the hold and we swung out to close the dampers. There was a crash just after we swung out."

Barrett described how he saw a volume of water rush through the ship's side two feet above the floor. He retreated through the adjoining section, No. 5, in the engine-room. He said a water-tight door was closed from the bridge a few minutes later, imprisoning the stokers and engineers in compartment No. 5, where they went down with the ship. Barrett escaped to the boat deck and got in Lifeboat No. 13.

Says Signals Showed Speed.
Barrett then explained that the signal had shown white, indicating full speed.

"How many boilers were lit?" asked the senator.

"All but five of the twenty-four," said the fireman. "I don't know, though, whether they were all connected up or not."

Senator Smith said later this testimony was the most significant he had obtained on the question whether the Titanic was trying to make a speed record.

Senator Smith said that in his speech before the senate tomorrow he would say that Captain Smith knew soon after the Titanic struck the iceberg that the ship was doomed and that in reply to an inquiry from J. Bruce Ismay he said: "We are gone."

In questioning Captain Haddock, the senator showed he was eager to ascertain how Haddock handled the first message that came to him showing that the Titanic was lost. The captain said he had not sent ashore his first message from the California, telling of the finding of Titanic wreckage, because he wished to be accurate.

The "telegraph" message from Bruce Ismay to Vice-President Franklin, he said, had not been relayed through the Olympic.

Captain Haddock told of having got one message from Ismay from the Carpathia, telling him to keep the Olympic out of sight of the rescued passengers, as there would be no transferring at sea.

HOMELESS FROM FLOODS
40,000 in Louisiana's Lowlands Without Shelter and in Want.

New Orleans, May 27.—With not less than 40,000 homeless and each day a greater portion of Louisiana's lowlands being inundated, the Hymelia cravasse in the Mississippi levee is now wider than ever before and is a rival to great break at Torras, through which water continues to sweep over the surrounding country for many miles.

REPUBLIC IS TOTTERING
Portugal Seething With Political Corruption—Revolt is Near.

Lisbon, May 27.—That the Portuguese republic is a failure and is tottering to its fall is the belief in many quarters, which has grown out of the present state of the country. The country is seething with political corruption, petty tyranny and monarchical conspiracies. Active preparations for a revolt are in progress.

Arrest Anarchists in Rome.
Rome, May 27.—Many anarchists are being arrested in Rome, Bologna, Milan and other Italian cities in connection with a supposed plot against the life of King Victor Emmanuel. The police still believe the attempt on the life of the king on March 14 was the result of an anarchistic conspiracy instead of the act of a maniac.

POULTRY BREEDERS TO MEET

President D. E. Hale of Illinois Organization Will Preside at Meeting to Be Held in Springfield June 4 and 5.

Springfield, May 27.—The first annual meeting of the poultry breeders of Illinois will assemble in this city at the state arsenal building on June 4 and 5. The meeting is held under the joint supervision of the Illinois State Poultry association and the Illinois State Branch of the American Poultry association. The convention will be called to order by President D. E. Hale of the Illinois branch, and will be addressed by Gov. Charles S. Deneen, William Osburn, president of the Illinois State Poultry association, Morris; Reese V. Hicks, president of the American Poultry association, Topeka, Kan., and Judge D. T. Helmish, Jacksonville.

Many Killed in Illinois.

Springfield, May 27.—Five hundred and fifty-two employees in Illinois industrial concerns were killed in 1911 in the course of their employment. A total of 4,510 nonfatal accidents occurred. Statistician C. A. Mitchell of the bureau of labor has completed the tabulation of the industrial accident report for the year ending December 31, 1911. Among the companies figuring heaviest in the fatal and nonfatal accidents for the year are: International Harvester company, 607 injured, 1 killed; Illinois Steel company, 251 injured, 17 killed; Illinois Central railroad, 225 injured, 50 killed; Pullman company, 119 injured; Chicago & Northwestern railroad, 112 injured, 41 killed; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, 123 injured, 25 killed.

Couple Married Fifty-Nine Years.

Charleston, May 27.—Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hill of Coles county have just celebrated the fifty-ninth anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Hill is eighty-nine years old and Mrs. Hill is in her eighty-first year. Both are in vigorous health and enjoy life on their farm, near the city. They have seven living children, sixteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Mr. Hill was born near Sullivan, Ind., and Mrs. Hill near Terre Haute, but they have lived in this county fifty-seven years. Mr. Hill has been interested in aerial navigation many years and has made many experiments on air craft.

Girl Dies of Fright.

Waukegan, May 27.—Coroner Taylor has discovered that Mary Hansen of Chicago, one of the seven persons lost when the gasoline launch sank at Fox lake recently, did not drown, but that her death likely was caused from fright occasioned by her fear of death when she saw the boat filling. Her body was recovered soon after the accident, while the others were in the water some days. The belief is Miss Hansen's body never sank, which would go to show her death occurred before the boat sank.

Would-Be Elopers Held.

Murphysboro, May 27.—William S. Murphy, a traveling man from Louisville, Ky., was held for the grand jury on a charge of swearing falsely as to the age of Miss Blanche Chamberlain, daughter of a Murphysboro merchant, when he obtained a marriage license after being acquainted with the girl four days. Her parents stopped a proposed elopement. The young woman is under age.

Fine Feathers From Barnyard.

In many states there is a law imposing a fine of $20 or more for the wearing of certain feathers. This stand does not lessen the beauty of feather ornamentation, for there is scarcely any plumage in the world of birds which the clever French and Austrian artists cannot duplicate with their marvelous color boxes, their pots of glue and the humble feathers of chandelier and his hens. In fact, many a beautiful, fantastic of colored breast and wing has had its birth in the wonder box of one of these dexterous experts, instead of on the tropical isle which surely seems to have been its home.

Cheese.

Consider the cheese of Roquefort; how hard it is in its little box. Consider the cheese of Camembert, which is hard also and lives in a little box, but must not be eaten until it is soft and yellow. Consider the cheese of Stilton, which is not made there, and of Cheddar, which is. Then there is your Parmesan, which idiots buy rancid in bottles, but which the wise grate daily for their use; you think it is hard from its birth? You are mistaken. It is the world that hardens the Parmesan. In its youth the Parmesan is very soft and easy and is voraciously devoured.—Hillside Belloc.

Wreck Delays Grayville Mail.

Grayville, May 27.—A freight wreck on the Big Four railway just north of Grayville blocked traffic. Only one car was wrecked, but nearly a half mile of track was torn up. Trains were detained by way of Evansville, Ind., and all mail over Big Four was a day late.

Farmers' Biggest Money Maker

These are the very words one man used in telling us about his old reliable Saginaw Silo. He added: "It was a farmer owning only 20 acres, even if I had to borrow the money, I would have a Saginaw Silo." The Saginaw preserves your silage perfectly—gives you, at one-half to one-fifth the old cost, an abundance of fresh-budding ration for your fattening stock and the richest butter producing feed for your dairy cows all through the winter. The Saginaw is built to do this for a lifetime. It is as solid as a mass of granite. It can never blow down. Come in and let us tell you about the Saginaw's patented Inner Anchoring Hoop and the All-Steel Door Frame. No one else allowed to use them. Let us also tell you about the wonderful
